MISSOULA--

University of Montana assistant football coach Charley Armev has submitted his resignation to UM Athletic Director Jack Swarthout and will accept a coaching position at Colorado State University.

Armev, who coached at Montana for three years, will be first assistant to former Weber State coach Sark Arslanian at the Fort Collins, Colorado, school. Armev will serve as associate coach and defensive coordinator for the Western Athletic Conference member Rams.

"My wife and I find it very difficult to leave Missoula, the University and the state at this time, but we feel that the Colorado State post offers an excellent opportunity to further my career. I would like to thank the people of Missoula, the people of Montana, the University, and especially Jack Swarthout for three good years," Armev stated.

A graduate of Cando, North Dakota, High School in 1958, Armev holds a bachelor's degree from Valley City, N.D., State College (1966) and a master's degree from North Dakota State University (1969).

He served as an assistant at North Dakota State in 1968 and coached the Montana Tech Orediggers (1969) before coming to the University in February of 1970.

Swarthout said that the task of replacing Armev would begin immediately and that applications are being accepted. "It will be very difficult to replace Charley Armev. He has done an outstanding job recruiting and has worked well with our Century Club in addition to his coaching duties. It will be hard to find someone who can work in all three areas," Swarthout stated.
